Chevron has been a company rooted in the business of exploring, developing and supplying energy for more than 130 years and is the second largest integrated energy company in the United States. We are engaged in virtually every aspect of the crude oil and natural gas industry, including exploration and production, manufacturing, marketing and transportation, chemicals manufacturing and sales, geothermal energy, and power generation.

The world needs all the energy we can develop, in every potential form. While finding new, safer and cleaner ways to maximize the use of traditional resources, we also depend on technology to produce emerging sources of energy.

Nearly 10,000 Houston-area Chevron professionals support all sectors of our business in order to provide the energy necessary to drive human progress. From scientists to engineers, project managers to analysts, and all of our professionals, Chevron brings a wealth of knowledge to the table in Houston that supports our global operations. We provide high-quality energy products to our customer, value to our investors, and through our direct involvement, benefit to the greater Houston community.

Investing in communities where we operate is one of our core values. Each year, Chevron operations in Houston commit millions of dollars and thousands of volunteer hours to non-profit organizations that address our region's most critical needs. We build homes for Habitat for Humanity, plant trees for Trees of Houston, teach in classrooms with Junior Achievement and provide meals to the homeless through the Houston Food Bank among many other community engagements.

Through our operations and community support efforts, we strive to create unparalleled partnerships as we do our part to make our community a better place. ■
