

The Health Museum invites you to join us in exploring what it means to be human. Through the deeply personal experiences and knowledge gained by our patrons through our programming and educational content, we seek to inspire our patrons to create a culture of altruism to support healthy communities.

- Our state-of-the-art, bilingual DeBakey Cell Lab allows our patrons to conduct real experiments with authentic lab equipment and goes beyond standard science demonstrations. Families and school groups test microbes, interact directly with DNA, extract chromosomes and DNA, and test antimicrobials.
- Our interactive and experiential community-oriented programs, exhibits, events, workshops, informal educational classes, academic conferences, day camps, holiday camps, adult programs, mind and body programs, and Scouts programs empower people to improve their quality of life.
- Our outreach programs contribute to the elimination of health disparities in the communities we serve through engaging, relevant, authentic, and accurate content providing information and education on mental and emotional well-being, active living, and healthy eating.
